What we talked about

[Three or four sentences summarizing the conversation in their words. Lead with the thing they said mattered most, not the thing you found most interesting. This paragraph proves you listened, which is most of what they are paying for.]

What you said you want: [their goal, quoted if possible] What is in the way: [the real blocker, which is often different from the one they named first]

Where things stand today

	STATUS	THE HONEST READ
Website	[note]	[note]
Google Business Profile	[note]	[note]
Reviews	[note]	[note]
Social	[note]	[note]
Email	[note]	[note]
Booking or contact path	[note]	[note]
Branding consistency	[note]	[note]
How customers currently find you	[note]	[note]

The one sentence version: [e.g. you have a good business, a broken front door, and no way for a stranger to find you. Everything below is about the front door.]

The plan

▪ Do this week

#	WHAT	WHY	WHO	TIME
1	[action]	[reason]	[you / me / either]	[time]
2	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]
3	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]

▪ Do this month

#	WHAT	WHY	WHO	TIME
4	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]
5	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]
6	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]

▪ Do this quarter

#	WHAT	WHY	WHO	TIME
7	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]
8	[action]	[reason]	[who]	[time]

What to ignore for now

[Two or three things they brought up, or that somebody has been pushing them toward, that are not worth their time yet. Name each one and say what would have to be true before it becomes worth doing.]

- [Thing] — not yet. Revisit when [condition]
- [Thing] — not yet. Revisit when [condition]
- [Thing] — honestly, never, and here is why: [reason]

The specific things I promised on the call

[Anything you said you would send, look up, or find out. Every one of them, with the answer. This is the section that turns a good call into a client.]

- [Thing promised] : [the answer or the link]
- [Thing promised] : [answer]

If you want help with any of it

You can run this whole plan yourself. That is why it is written down this way, with who and how long on every line.

If you would rather hand pieces of it over:

PIECE	WHAT IT WOULD COST	ROUGHLY HOW LONG
[piece]	[price]	[time]
[piece]	[price]	[time]
[piece]	[price]	[time]

No pressure, no sequence of follow-up emails. If you want it, reply to this one.

Internal notes, delete before sending

Total time: 45 minute call plus 30 to 40 minutes writing it up. Send within 24 hours, always.

▪ Before the call, 10 minutes

- [] Look at their website on a phone
- [] Search their business name and their main service plus city
- [] Look at the Google Business Profile
- [] Check their most active social account
- [] Note three things that are working. You will need them

▪ The call, 45 minutes

- 0 to 5: How is business? Let them talk. Do not open with your findings
- 5 to 15: Where do customers come from today? What do you wish happened more? What have you tried?
- 15 to 25: Your observations. Lead with what is working. Then one honest thing that is not
- 25 to 40: Build the plan together, out loud. Ask "could you actually do that?" on every item. If the answer is no, the item is wrong

- 40 to 45: Recap the three things for this week. Tell them the written plan lands within 24 hours

- Rules

- Talk less than half the time. If you talked more than they did, you sold instead of listened
- Never say the word "just" before a task. Nothing is "just" anything to somebody who has not done it
- Every item gets a who and a time estimate. A plan without those is a wish list
- The "what to ignore" section is what makes people trust the rest of it
- Send the write-up within 24 hours. The value of this call decays fast and so does the goodwill
- If the honest answer is that they do not need you, say so and refund it. That person tells more people about you than a client would
