

COURTRIGHT COLLECTIVE · AI AUTOMATION

Somewhere in your inbox, a customer is still waiting.

You're not ignoring them. You're just one person doing five jobs. We build email triage that sorts, drafts, and flags what actually matters... so the money stops dying in the unread pile.

"I should automate that..."

You keep saying it.
We actually do it.

Email triage, automated reports, review requests, asset tracking. You don't need to learn a single AI tool. Tell us what eats your week, and we build the thing that gives it back.

Ready to grow. Not ready to hire. That's exactly who we build for.

An assistant costs $40k a year. The automations that do the same busywork... a fraction of that, and they don't call in sick. Grow into your next hire instead of gambling on it.

15 minutes.

Give us fifteen. We'll find you hours.

A free audit call. You talk through your week, we point at the parts a well-built automation would erase. No deck, no pressure, no invoice. Worst case, you leave with a to-do list. Best case, you leave with your evenings.

Not an agency. Not a chatbot. A family that builds things.

Courtright Collective is a family-run studio. When you email, a Courtright answers. When something breaks at 9 PM, we're the ones who fix it... because our name is on it. Small business is what we are, not just who we serve.

You built that report by hand again, didn't you?

- i.* Export the spreadsheet. Again.
- ii.* Copy, paste, fix the columns Excel mangled.
- iii.* Email it to yourself "to check later."
- iv.* Or: it lands in your inbox every Monday, already done.

"You need to be using AI." "AI is changing everything."

Everyone sells the why. We build the how.

You've heard the pressure. What nobody hands you is a working system wired into your actual business. That's our whole job: we listen to how your week runs, then build the automations that run it with you. No jargon. No homework.

Automation isn't about robots. It's about dinner at six.

The invoices send themselves. The report is already in the inbox. The follow-ups went out at noon. The work still happened... you just weren't chained to it. That's the actual product. The software is just how we get you there.
